This volume provides a commentary on divorce law and practice in the Sheriff Court in Scotland. Source material is included. Since the Court Reform (Scotland) Act 2014 and the creation of the All Scotland Personal Injury Court, Scotland's sheriff courts now deals with all cases worth up to £100,000, covering cases ranging from debt and bankruptcy, to child welfare and anti-social behaviour. With a focus on remedies, Style Writs for the Sheriff Court illustrates general litigation styles using fictitious characters and detailed accounts which are based on real cases, covering the areas commonly encountered by solicitors. It also incorporates changes brought about by the Home Owner and Debtor Protection (Scotland) Act 2010 and the 2019 Rules on Expenses. Solicitors practising in Scotland will benefit from the new and updated style writs included, such as: - Pursuer's Offer - Action for Reduction - Action for Proving the Tenor of a lost document The Fifth Edition of this practical guide enables you to navigate styles of writs, defences, motions and written pleadings using up to date references to statute and Court Rules. Excerpt from A Digest of Cases Decided in the Sheriff Courts of Scotland Prior to 31st December, 1894, and Reported in the Sheriff Court Reports, 1885-94 (Volumes 1 to 10), And Guthrie's Select Sheriff Court Cases (Volumes 1 and 2) This digest has not been extended beyond the ten annual volumes of the Sheriff Court Reports which have been issued up to date and the collection of Select Cases edited by Sheriff Guthrie, because the 1600 odd cases there reported are thought to be those which are most accessible to practitioners and most likely to be useful to them. No attempt has been made in the digest to follow the cases further than the Sheriff Courts; the reports themselves, the Supreme Court reports, and the agents, may be referred to in the few instances where information on this point is desired. On the assumption generally made that the opinions of the sheriff-substitute and the sheriff-principal are of equal value, if not of equal authority, the summary of the case usually notices where there has been a reversal or alteration on appeal to the latter. Excerpt from A Digest of Cases Decided in the Sheriff Courts of Scotland: Prior to 31st December, 1904, and Reported in the Sheriff Court Reports, 1885-1904 (Volumes 1 to 20), And Guthrie's Select Sheriff Court Cases (Volumes 1 and 2) In bringing down this digest for another ten years the lines of that which was published in 1895 have been followed, with but little change. Few suggestions have been received for its improvement; and the absence of such, together with communications of positive approval, has assured the compiler and publishers that on the whole its form has been found serviceable. No attempt has been made in the digest to follow the cases further than the Sheriff Courts; the reports themselves, the Supreme Court reports, and the agents, may be referred to in the few instances where information on this point is desired. On the assumption generally made that the opinions of the Sheriff-Substitute and the Sheriff-Principal are of equal value, if not of equal authority, the summary of the case usually notices where there has been a reversal or alteration on appeal to the latter. The terms of the original rubrics, not having always been designed to stand by themselves, have been freely altered, with the view of bringing out the salient points of the cases, but at the same time compression has been aimed at and attained. Repetition of rubrics under different heads has been largely avoided by the free insertion of cross references, which, in this edition, have been made more precise and increased in number. The sub-divisions of the larger heads are not intended to be logical or exhaustive categories, but they may be found convenient in seeking cases; and, as cross references between these sub-divisions have not been thought necessary, a case may sometimes be found under a sub-head not appropriate to all that is contained in the rubric. The cases on a given point are generally arranged according to date. The title Reparation is limited to claims founded on delict and quasi-delict, breaches of obligation being included under the contracts, relationships, and other categories which are apposite; and decisions on Railway Carriage appear under Carrier. The Workmen's Compensation Act has a title to itself, having little, if any, affinity to Reparation, Master and Servant, or anything else legal.
